Southern Exposure at Sixth Benefit
by Elinor Folger Foster

This year the Friends of the Library annual benefit event, continuing a series which began in 2002, will have a Southern accent. Featured speaker/entertainer/author/etiquette expert Cecilia Budd Grimes will enlighten the audience on "What It Means To Be Southern," speaking from a series of books on that topic she has written. She will refresh the Southern cultural literacy level of the audience on such things as names (think double) and food (consider deviled egg plates and soft drink rituals). Furthermore, she will provide information on the difference between hissie fits and conniptions and the three adjectives that are a part of every Southern lady's vocabulary.

North Carolina native Cecilia Budd Grimes is a graduate of Wake Forest and Duke universities and is a certified etiquette and protocol consultant with credentials from the Protocol School of Washington.

Other featured entertainers will be the UNC Pembroke Jazz Ensemble and Jazz Singers, directed by UNCP Associate Professor of Music Dr. Larry Arnold, and veteran auctioneer and educator Raz Autry of Raeford.

Mr. Autry will conduct the live auction for items such as Southwest Airlines tickets, quilts, a cruise, dining and vacation opportunities, and surprises. The live auction will be preceded by a silent auction during the dinner hour. Silent auction items include Seagrove pottery, golf packages, handmade crafts, gift certificates, artwork, and a certificate for a semester's housing at UNC Pembroke along with other interesting selections. Food stations staffed by Sodexo will feature roast beef, pasta, salads, desserts, and beverages.

The purpose of the Friends of the Library benefit event is to raise funds for Friends' projects, including scholarships, the McNaughton lease program which provides supplemental books and media for library users, and sponsorship of programs featuring visiting authors and the winners of the annual Poetry/Short Prose Contest.

The schedule for the events of the April 13 benefit evening is:

- 5:30 – 7:30, silent auction and dinner
- 7:30 – 8:00, live auction
- 8:00 – 9:00, program, featuring introduction of the 2007 Friends of the Library scholarship winners, the UNC Pembroke Jazz Ensemble and Jazz Singers, and Cecilia Budd Grimes
- 9:00 – 9:30, checkout and collection of auction items

You'll enjoy the evening and possibly increase your level of Southern cultural literacy during "Southern Accent @ the Library," April 13, 2007. Tickets are $50 each or $400 for a table of eight with naming rights. Please contact the Sampson-Livermore Library at 910.521.6516 for tickets and/or other information.
Message from the Dean of Library Services

Once again it’s time for our annual benefit event, the sixth in a series of successful functions that have been enjoyable for our guests and advantageous for library users. I hope to see the usual good turnout for the April 13 extravaganza, “Southern Accent @ the Library.”

While all campus personnel and other persons on our Friends of the Library mailing list will continue to be invited to special events sponsored by the Friends, such as author programs and the annual benefit, those individuals who are not part of the campus community who have not renewed their membership in the Friends of the Library will no longer receive this newsletter after the Spring 2007 issue. An October annual renewal date was established in 2005; a list of those who are current members is included in this issue of Library Lines. If you would like to join the Friends of the Library of UNC Pembroke or renew your membership, we would be delighted to hear from you. A membership form is on the last page of this newsletter, or membership personnel can be contacted at 910.521.6516.

At the conclusion of this academic year I will be welcoming new Friends of the Library officers and lamenting the loss of others. New officers will be elected at the annual membership meeting of the Friends of the Library of UNC Pembroke, to which everyone is invited, to be held at 3:30 p.m. April 18 in the main reading room of the Sampson-Livermore Library.

In conclusion, I would like to thank all our library supporters for helping make the 2006-07 academic year a progressive and successful one for our campus community and beyond.

Elinor Folger Foster

Dr. Anthony Curtis
President
Friends of the Library

With thanks for a job well done!
Come Together @ Your Library
by Anne Coleman and Jean Sexton

Come together @ your library: celebrate National Library Week at the Sampson-Livermore Library, April 15-21, 2007. This theme, chosen by the American Library Association for National Library Week, is a concept the Library promotes throughout the year, so it is fitting that we celebrate it now.

It’s National Library Week — a time to celebrate the contributions of libraries, librarians, and library workers in colleges, schools, and communities nationwide — and the perfect time for our community to come together @ our library.

Everyday, libraries in big cities and small towns, in colleges and universities, in schools, and in businesses help transform their communities. At the Sampson-Livermore Library, people of all backgrounds can come together to do research with the assistance of trained professionals. People can participate in study groups, meetings, lectures, and programs or may pursue avenues of individual interest.

At our Library, there are activities planned throughout the week of April 15-21. A display case highlighting campus authors will be ready for viewing.

The week will open with a book sale that begins on April 16, 2007 at 9:00 a.m. upstairs in the Library. On this day the sale is limited to members of the Friends of the Library. Once again there will be some bid items available. The sale closes on Monday at 7:00 p.m.

On Tuesday, April 17, the sale opens to the general public at 9:00 a.m. and closes at 7:00 p.m. On Wednesday through Friday, the book sale continues from 9:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. Prices this year are $1.00 for hardbacks and any non-print materials, $0.50 for paperbacks, and $0.25 for magazines. We encourage you to come early in order to have the best selection of sale items.

On Wednesday, April 18, there will be a reading of the winning entries from the Poetry/Short Prose Contest sponsored by the Sampson-Livermore Library and the Kiwanis of Robeson. The top three entries from UNCP students, area high school students, and the general public will be read. The Kiwanis of Robeson are providing the prize for the first-place high school student entry and the Friends of the Library are providing all other prizes. We will be coming together at 3:30 p.m. in the Library’s main reading room to hear outstanding authors. Campus authors will also be honored during the program.

Prior to the reading of winning entries, there will be a short business meeting of the general membership of the UNCP Friends of the Library. Following the reading there will be a reception, also held in the main reading room.

Please join us during National Library Week when we all come together @ the Sampson Livermore Library.

Library Keeping Pace: Online, Media-Rich, and Interactive!
by Michael C. Alewine and Cynthia E. Saylor

Have you had a look around the Library’s website lately? If so, you will have noticed some really cool resources that we have created to help people learn about the Library and what it has to offer. Included are podcasts, online tutorials, interactive maps, and video tours.

Although designed to guide patrons of all ages, these new resources are specifically targeting traditional college students (those between the ages of 18 and 22). Educational theorist Donald Tapscott refers to these students, those who have grown up with the Internet and who prefer to communicate, learn, and interact with their world via online environments, as the “Net Generation.”

Many of these students come to the Library, but not necessarily to take advantage of research services and resources. They use computers; they check out videos; they talk with friends; and almost all of them, or so it seems, have and are constantly using mobile electronic devices such as iPods and MP3 players.

The Library is keeping pace with technology advancements by expanding its audiovisual material collections, providing an online integrated library catalog, and utilizing e-mail and instant messaging to answer reference questions. Now with the explosion of chat, web communities, iPods, cell phones, and other types of mobile devices, the Library is attempting to become more accessible to its wired population.

A recent project that the Library undertook was an online and interactive map of the Sampson-Livermore Library. The map of the two levels of the Library allows users to click on it to see pop-up information about and photos of various locations within the building. In addition, the Library’s online catalog, Bravecat, now includes links to a map so that it is easier to see where materials are located.

It seems that many library users often do not realize what our Library has to offer. This includes people who come to the Library on a regular basis but are still unaware of our resources and services. Many users in the University community do not know that we check out wireless laptops and DVD players for three hours (library use only), check out MP3 players for three weeks, and that we do not charge for checking out videos.

Traditionally the Library has notified users about new library resources and services via posters, fliers, and our newsletter. In an effort to reach out to our students, Cynthia E. Saylor, Assistant Dean for Research Services and Systems, decided to create a weekly podcast called “The Library Minute.” These podcasts, highlighting library services and special events, can be listened to online, downloaded to a mobile device such as an MP3 player, or via an RSS feed. The Library is expanding its podcast use throughout its various webpages for such things as highlighting new resources, focusing on Friends of the Library events, and audio versions of our FAQs.

One of the central functions of an academic library is providing information literacy instruction. We do this in a variety of ways: through one-to-one consultations; through the use of guides, both print and online; and through course-specific instruction in the Library’s electronic classroom. The Library’s newest online tutorial is the general Guide to Library Research, which includes html pages, screen captures, flash videos, and an interactive self-quizz. According to Anthony Holderied, Instructional Services/Reference Librarian, “Instructional tutorials have become a valuable asset in working with freshmen students. We’ve discovered that they are instrumental in providing a solid foundation for acquiring information literacy skills.”

Guided tours of the library facilities are provided upon request. Currently are we creating an online, self-paced version of this tour using videos and student-actors. Students will be able to view the tour wherever they are or download it to a portable device, such as a video iPod. The online tour will also be linked to the interactive library map.

The creation of these resources involved collaboration between library personnel and members of the faculty. In order to create these rich resources, the Library made use of the talents and experience of its staff combined with new technologies. It is also important to note that the Library offers alternative format resources for students with disabilities.

Dr. Elinor Foster, Dean of Library Services, noted, “The Library will continue to create and refine its online presence in the hopes of reaching and engaging all of our students, faculty, and staff, as well as members of the community.”
Sampson-Livermore Library has purchased numerous databases recently in order to better meet the research needs of the University. The databases cover a wide range of subjects and areas. Below are brief descriptions of the new databases.

Academic OneFile

Academic OneFile is a collection of more than 8,000 journals with full indexing and coverage of a variety of academic disciplines from science, technology, and medicine to the humanities. The majority of the content is peer-reviewed and available in full-text.

America's Newspapers and America's Historical Newspapers

America's Newspapers provides full-text articles from the electronic editions of more than 600 United States newspapers. America's Historical Newspapers: 1690-1922 provides coverage of early American newspapers. Both of these resources are created by NewsBank.

Ancestry Library Edition

Ancestry Library Edition is an unparalleled genealogical collection. It includes census, vital, church, court, and immigration records from the United States and United Kingdom. In addition, selected records from Canada and other areas are available.

Bibliography of Native North Americans

Bibliography of Native North Americans is a bibliographic database covering all aspects of Native North American culture, history, and life from the sixteenth century to the present.

Book Review Digest Plus and Book Review Digest Retrospective

Book Review Digest Plus indexes reviews of current fiction, nonfiction, and children's books back to 1983. It provides review excerpts and over 100,000 full-text reviews. Book Review Digest Retrospective expands the indexing coverage back to 1905. It also includes some excerpts from the reviews.

Books in Print

Books in Print provides descriptions and reviews of in-print, out-of-print, and forthcoming books from thousands of North American publishers.

eHRAF Collection of Ethnography and eHRAF Collection of Archaeology eHRAF Collection of Ethnography, is unique because each culture or ethnic group contains a variety of source documents (books, articles, and dissertations). As a multicultural database, it appeals to many academic disciplines in the social sciences, humanities, medicine, and any other area with an interest in cultural diversity. The eHRAF Collection of Archaeology contains information on over 41 major archaeological traditions.

Essay & General Literature Index

This database offers access to nearly 65,000 essays from 1985 forward contained in some 5,300 anthologies and collections. Coverage spans the entire range of the humanities and social sciences, with subject coverage ranging from economics, political science, and history to criticism of literary works, art history, drama, and film.

Ethnic NewsWatch

Ethnic NewsWatch (ENW) features national and regional coverage of more than 250 newspapers, magazines, and journals of the ethnic and minority press from 1990 to the present.

GenderWatch

With material dating back to 1970, GenderWatch (GW) provides authoritative historical and current perspectives on the evolution of gender roles. GenderWatch supports gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender (GLBT) studies; family studies; gender studies; and women's studies with a unique interdisciplinary approach.

GeoRef

GeoRef contains over 2.8 million bibliographic records to the geoscience literature of the world. Over 3,500 journals are reviewed for indexing in the GeoRef database as well as books, maps, government reports, conference papers, theses, and dissertations.

Gale Literary Databases

Gale Literary Databases contains three distinct databases, all with full text entries. Contemporary Authors covers biographical details on approximately 116,000 modern novelists, poets, playwrights, nonfiction writers, journalists, and screenwriters. Contemporary Literary Criticism Select provides criticism of novelists, poets, short story writers, playwrights, and other creative writers ranging from established authors to emerging talent. The Dictionary of Literary Biography covers authors, literary themes, genres, and literary periods.

NetAdvantage

NetAdvantage, provided by the Standard & Poor's company, is a comprehensive source of business and investment information, offering online access to popular print Standard & Poor's research products.

RCLweb (Resources for College Libraries)

Updated quarterly, this resource features a core list of selected titles in 58 curriculum-specific subjects to assist in the selection and evaluation of library materials.

Twayne's Authors Series

Twayne's Authors Series offers in-depth introductions to the lives and works of writers, to the history and influence of literary movements, or the development of literary genres. This database features the content of nearly 600 books from the United States Authors, English Authors, and World Authors series.

Happenings and Kudos

New Library Staff

Daytime visitors to the Sampson-Livermore Library will see a new friendly person willing to assist them with research questions or minor technical issues. Julious K. Hagans joined the staff on January 2 as the Public Services Library Technical Assistant. On a regular basis, Julious works as needed the Reference, Serials, or Circulation service desks. Julious, a Lumberton native, is no stranger to the UNCP campus community. Prior to joining the library staff, he worked three years as a Recruiter/Educational Advisor for the UNCP Health Careers Opportunity Program. Before that Julious was a Peace Corps volunteer for two years in the Ivory Coast, West Africa. During his time as a water and sanitation volunteer, Julious helped the local village inhabitants maintain a viable source of drinking water, establish good methods of personal hygiene, and see the connection between a sanitary water supply and healthy living. He believes that the best aspect of his job is the "opportunity each day to interact and work with students." In his spare time, Julious enjoys reading and trying to make "a more pleasant canine citizen" of Tucker, his dog.

Sondra Oxendine began working at the Sampson-Livermore Library on March 1 as Acquisitions Library Technical Assistant I. Originally from Baltimore, Maryland, Sondra was raised in Pembroke where she now resides with her husband and son. Before coming to the Library, she had been employed at BB&T as a relationship banker. In Sondra's words, the relationship banker "answers customer questions and serves as a first contact in establishing a relationship with BB&T." She looks forward to bringing her financial skills and abilities to the Library. In her spare time, Sondra enjoys spending time with her family, bike riding, and travelling.

Promotions

Gwendolyn H. Locklear, a UNCP employee for 19 years, was promoted in December 2006 to Administrative Secretary III. She serves as the departmental secretary and administrative assistant to Dr. Elinor Foster, Dean of Library Services. Gwen has worked for three different library directors plus one interim director. According to Dr. Foster, "Mrs. Locklear is quite an asset to the Library. She is respected by the entire staff as a person who can get things done in a quiet, efficient manner. We all think that she's the greatest."

Career Banding and Job Title Changes

Career Banding is a state initiative designed to retain and develop a competent and diverse workforce while acknowledging labor market competitiveness. As a result of this program, several library staff members, those in the clerical and administrative assistant categories, had their titles changed. All new titles were effective February 1, 2007.

Gwendolyn H. Locklear had her new job title changed to Executive Assistant effective February 1, 2007. Gwen states that she is "happy to work with the greatest staff."

Susan Cummings has worked at the Library for 29 years. Susan's original job title was Library Clerk II. With the implementation of the Career Banding initiative, her new title is Administrative Support Associate.

Ester Hedrick began working at UNCP in 2000 as a Library Clerk III. Her new title became Administrative Support Associate. When asked to comment on her experiences at the Library, Ester responded by emphasizing that working in libraries has both rewarding and educational.

Geraldine McMillan, an employee of UNCP since 1997, received word that her new job title would be Administrative Support Associate. She had formerly held the title of Library Clerk III. Geraldine says that her experience here at the Sampson-Livermore Library has been a "rewarding journey."

Scholarship

The library staff has been active yet again in various types of scholarship activities, including participation at major professional conferences, presentations at conference and workshops, and published articles.

Dean of Library Services Dr. Elinor Foster attended the Midwinter Meeting of the American Library Association in Seattle, Washington, January 18-23. During this conference she participated in the work of two committees, the Human Resources Advisory Committee of the American Library Association and the Effective Practices Committee of the Association of College and Research Libraries.

Instructional Services/Reference Librarian Anthony Holderied is scheduled at press time to present at the 2007 Digital Content Consortium & Podcasting Festival at UNCP on March 16. Anthony's presentation is entitled "Accessing Books 24/7 and Camio for the Classroom."

Access Services/Reference Librarian June Power recently published an article entitled "RFID and Libraries" in her column "Access the Web." This column appears in The Journal of Access Services, volume 3, issue 2 on page 83.

Assistant Dean for Research Services and Systems, Cynthia E. Saylor and Outreach/Distance Education Librarian Michael Alewine are scheduled to co-present at the UNC TLT Collaborative Annual Conference on March 22 in Raleigh, North Carolina. The title of their presentation is "Reaching Students Where They Are: Interactive Resources and Media Integration from the Library's Website."

Michael Alewine is also scheduled to make two additional presentations in March. Michael and Debbie Thompson, the Director of Instructional Technology in the UNCP School of Education, are to present "Creating Online Interactive and Media-rich Learning Objects for Students" at the 2007 Digital Content Consortium & Podcasting Festival at UNCP on March 17. Michael, Dr. Charles Tita, the Director of Continuing Education and Distance Education, and Terry Locklear, Technology Support Analyst, are to present "Improving Online Learning through Assessment: Three Ways to Evaluate a Distance Education Program" at the UNC TLT Collaborative Annual Conference on March 22.

Serials Librarian Rob Wolf is scheduled at press time to present at the 16th North Carolina Serials Conference March 29-30 in Chapel Hill, North Carolina. Rob's presentation is entitled "User-Based Serials Collection Development."
