Alumni Notes
Alumni, Donors and Friends

Before I begin my annual invitation to attend Homecoming on February 4-5, I would like to say a word about the late Chancellor Emeritus Paul R. Givens, who passed away October 24, 2004.

I was fortunate to meet Dr. Givens. He was truly a great leader for this University. Under his steady guidance, UNCP emerged as a true regional university that could create new programs and bring people to campus.

On the stage of the building that bears his name, Dr. Givens built a regional audience for performing arts and, more importantly, for the University.

One of Dr. Givens’ first missions at UNCP was to extend an invitation to all alumni to maintain contact with their alma mater. So it is with great pleasure that I stand in his stead and offer our alumni and friends an invitation to Homecoming 2005 and extend a larger invitation to renew your ties to your University.

We continue to be a university on the move. At Winter Commencement, we graduated 402 students! Commencement ceremonies were held in the newly renovated English E. Jones Athletic Center.

Construction on campus is at full throttle. We will soon cut the ribbon on $9 million in additions and improvements to the Jones Athletic Center. We have constructed a state-of-the-art facility for our teams, for our programs in physical education and sports medicine and for all our students, faculty, staff and alumni.

Work has begun on renovations and additions to Moore and Locklear Halls. Ground will soon be broken for a new classroom building to be located north of the Adolph L. Dial Humanities Building.

The excitement about UNCP’s future football team has been amazing. Our trustees approved a plan to bring football back to campus after a 50-year timeout. With your continued support, the historic kickoff will take place in the fall of 2007. Don’t miss it!

Football will enhance the spirit of our growing University for our students and alumni. Inevitably, the centerpiece of Homecoming 2007 and beyond will be a football game. It will give us all the opportunity to celebrate our University in the beautiful fall weather.

There is a lot of work to do before Homecoming 2007, and we will be asking you for your help. Join us for Homecoming 2005 and tackle the excitement for yourself!

Chancellor’s Message

UNCP sets enrollment records

For the fifth consecutive year, the University has set new enrollment records.

Chancellor Meadors reported enrollment of 5,015 for the fall semester, compared to 4,722 a year ago. This is a gain of 6.2 percent for one year and 64 percent since 1999.

Not only did enrollment surpass the 5,000 milestone, but graduate school enrollment also passed the 500 mark (507), and American Indian enrollment passed the 1,000 mark (1,026) for the first time in University history.

“Since 1999, we have experienced a 49 percent increase in American Indian student enrollment, and that is in a declining population of American Indian high school graduates,” Chancellor Meadors said. “That’s a remarkable accomplishment.”

Asian (86), Hispanic (114) and international (52) student enrollment are all at record levels. The University also added 15 faculty members this year, Chancellor Meadors said.

“This is a tremendous milestone for this University,” said Jackie Clark, vice chancellor for Enrollment Management. Clark supervises the Office of Admissions, UNCP’s office of student recruitment.

The enrollment records are even more impressive this year because the new freshman class of 760 is smaller than last year’s record freshman class of 809. Record numbers of transfers (500) and graduate students made up the difference.

Another all-time record for students living on campus was set this fall. There are 1,240 residential students, and the occupancy rate is 92 percent. Another 231 students live just off campus in the University Courtyard Apartments.

See you there!
At the December 1, 2004 meeting of the Board of Trustees, a plan was adopted to bring football back to the University after a more than 50-year absence.

The target date for the first kickoff is not until the fall of 2007, but this did not deter the boardroom excitement that can only be induced by visions of college football in Pembroke on Saturday afternoons.

There were lots of numbers thrown out — game uniforms at $175 each, an artificial playing surface at $700,000, a head coach at $75,000 — but the college football experience is, well, priceless.

College football engages all the senses: food grilling at tailgate parties, marching bands, cheerleaders and the roar of the crowd at the kickoff followed by the crack of helmet on helmet. This is the dream of college football’s return to Pembroke.

The dream is back!

For the record, voting for the measure were Chair Carl Meares Jr., Gervais Oxendine ’63, Sybil Collins ’77, Marion Bass ’62, Freda Porter ’78, Thomas Jones II ’72, Rebecca Bullard, Sherry Prince, Dick Taylor and Student Government President Venessa Jones ’05.

Witnesses included Chancellor Meadors, Athletic Director Dan Kenney and a full contingent of media representatives and University administrators.

Consultant George “Buddy” Sasser drew a picture of the impact football will have on the University. In his presentation, Sasser may have set an NCAA record for using the word “unbelievable”:

• “Unbelievable” alumni support,
• “Unbelievable” public support and an
• “Unbelievable” boost for public relations.

A veteran coach and athletic director, Sasser knows what he is talking about. He has worked on football startups at Appalachian State University, Wofford College and Coastal Carolina University.

“People who never visited your campus before will be tailgating on Saturday afternoons,” Sasser said. “Alumni attracted by football will fund library projects.”

Besides boosting alumni and community support, Sasser said football would have a positive effect on students, too. Football will have a profoundly positive impact on one of Chancellor Meadors’ most cherished goals — improving the quality of student life.

“It would build school unity and spirit,” he said. “It would help with both enrollment and retention. It would be another piece of making Pembroke a true college town.”

By a unanimous and historic vote of the Board of Trustees — and the surrounding community — football is back, and the future changed. With one voice, the University community said, “We are a football University!”
Football may be the most popular program in his five years at the University, said Chancellor Meadors. “In my 30 years in higher education, I’ve never seen anything like these approval ratings,” he said after the December 1 meeting.

Here are the numbers:

• Students voted 91.5 percent in favor of football.
• 87 percent of alumni surveyed support football; 71 percent said they would definitely attend games.
• A key campus committee composed of students, faculty and staff voted unanimously to support football.

Letters from alumni summed up support for football:

• “Football at UNC Pembroke? Sign me up today for season tickets.”
• “I think it’s a great idea whose time has come.”
• “I am a lifelong resident of Pembroke ... I see only positives.”
• “What do I need to do to help?”
• “Support for football from my circle of alumni friends is unanimous.”
• “I sincerely hope this dream becomes a reality.”

“If you start a program, I’ll give.”

The air has not been pumped into the first ball yet, and Kenney cautioned that there is a lot of work to do. There is money to be raised, conference affiliations to be cemented and a stadium to be constructed.

But if everything goes according to Kenney’s timetable, there will be a historic kickoff at Belk Stadium sometime on the afternoon of September 1, 2007. Don’t miss it!

2004

Keeping up with Professor Emeritus Frank Schmalleger

When Dr. Frank Schmalleger retired 10 years ago, he left as one of the most celebrated scholars in the University’s history.

Published in 1991 and in its eighth printing, his textbook, “Criminal Justice Today,” is the best-selling college textbook in its field. With 16 years as chair of the Department of Sociology, Social Work and Criminal Justice, Dr. Schmalleger was a popular teacher, too, earning a 1983 Indianhead yearbook dedication and the praise of students for being a professor who “makes coming to school worthwhile.”

A home in Hilton Head Island, S.C., sounds like a dream for the youngest professor emeritus in University history. Retirement was never part of the plan for Dr. Schmalleger. And at 57, it still is not part of his plans.

Since leaving the University, Dr. Schmalleger has written numerous books and textbooks. He lectures throughout the United States and is Webmaster of several sites. He is also founder and co-director of the Criminal Justice Learning Consortium, a foundation for distance learning in criminal justice. Following is an e-mail interview with Dr. Schmalleger this summer shortly after he relocated with his family to their new home in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla.:

“My wife, Harmonie Schmalleger, and I lived on Hilton Head Island for 10 years after retiring. We had a great spot on the harbor of the South Carolina Yacht Club, and you could come to our house by boat or by car. While I love boats, my wife would say that we lived on a parking lot. She’s the one who wanted to move, and south Florida has a lot to offer. The spot we are in is where the new Scripps Institute is coming to. It will be an East Coast campus of the world-famous Scripps Institute in La Jolla, Calif., and the development is anticipated to bring as many as 40,000 jobs to the area over the next 15 years. The hope is that the Palm Beach Gardens area will become another Research Triangle — this one focusing on biomedical research. I’m particularly interested in biomedical aspects of criminal behavior and am exploring the possibility of affiliating with Scripps in some capacity.

“My emphasis in my writing has been on two things: (1) individual rights versus the need for safety and security in society, and (2) professionalism. Hence, my text, ‘Corrections in the 21st Century’ (co-written with John Smykla at the University of Alabama and just out in its second edition), highlights the need for continued professional development in the corrections field.

“Interestingly, another text that I wrote, ‘Criminal Law Today’ (now going into a third edition), caught the attention of the attorney general of China. He wanted to put it into the hands of every law student in China so that they could understand American criminal law.”

Ila Killian promoted to assistant vice chancellor

Ila Killian, a 29-year employee in the Office of Business Affairs, has been promoted to assistant vice chancellor/controller.

Starting with the University as an accounting technician, Killian has been controller since 1984, serving in the dual role of budget officer for her first 14 years. She supervises a staff of 22 and is responsible for internal and external financial reporting, accounts payable and receivable, capital project budgeting and accounting, asset and grant accounting, payroll and the cashier’s office.

Killian earned her Bachelor of Science degree in business administration from UNCP. She earned an Associate degree in accounting from Fayetteville Technical Community College.

Named to the “National Register of Who’s Who of Executives and Professionals,” Killian was nominated for the 2001 Barry K. Sanders Award for outstanding fiscal management professionals in North Carolina.

Professor Kania wins Fulbright scholarship

Dr. Richard R.E. Kania, a sociology and criminal justice professor, has been awarded a prestigious Fulbright Fellowship to teach and conduct research abroad.

The chair for the Department of Sociology, Social Work and Criminal Justice, Dr. Kania will spend a year as a visiting professor at Belarus State University in Minsk.

For Dr. Kania, who speaks several languages, it is his second Fulbright Fellowship. In 1997, he spent a year in Poland on a Fulbright.
The December 11, 2004 Winter Commencement at the University witnessed 402 receive diplomas. It was UNCP’s fifth Winter Commencement and its largest.

The ceremony was held for the first time in the larger English E. Jones Athletic Center. Traveling the farthest for Commencement were three Chinese students from the prestigious Chinese University of Mining and Technology (CUMT). They received Master of Public Administration degrees.

Keynote speaker Dr. Patricia Valenti, a 20-year veteran of the English Department, served as grand marshal for Commencement by virtue of winning the UNC Board of Governors 2004 Award for Teaching Excellence. She is the author of several books on the family of early American writer Nathaniel Hawthorne.

Chancellor Meadors presided, as he has at all five Winter Commencements at UNCP.

Approval won to start four-year nursing program

The University’s planned four-year, pre-licensure Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) program was granted initial approval from the North Carolina Board of Nursing in late September. Earlier, the UNC Board of Governors gave its approval to launch the program.

Approximately 50 students will be admitted for the 2005 spring semester, and a total of 200 students will be admitted by 2007. This is good news for UNCP and health care in the region, said Chancellor Meadors.

“UNCP’s nursing program will assist our region by graduating top-quality nurses,” Chancellor Meadors said. “The nursing field is a noble, caring profession, and it is critical to help resolve the increasing nursing shortage in our region.”

The new program will be located in Lumberton, N.C., at Southeastern Regional Medical Center’s (SRMC) Corporate Services Building. Approximately 7,000 square feet of the building, located next to the hospital, will be renovated as clinical settings, classrooms, computer labs and offices.

SRMC will serve as the classroom and clinical site for students. Chief Executive Officer and President Luckey Welsh said UNCP’s new nursing program is good news.

“We at SRMC are excited about the approval of the UNCP four-year nursing program,” Welsh said. “We appreciate the vision of Chancellor Meadors and the work by Dr. Peggy Opitz (UNCP’s nursing program chair), whose planning gained approval for the program.”

Typically, students will be admitted to the BSN program after two years at the University, and Registered Nursing (RN) licensure examinations will be taken upon graduation.

The four-year BSN is not UNCP’s first endeavor in nursing education. It has operated an RN-to-BSN program as a consortium program with Fayetteville State University since 1992, and Dr. Opitz directed this program for eight years.

“Our nursing program has delivered great returns for this University and for nursing in the region,” Dr. Opitz said. “We have graduated over 160 BSNs, and 30 have gone on to get their master’s degrees.”

When UNCP asked the Board of Nursing for 100 slots in the new program, 200 were granted, Dr. Opitz said. Gail Davis, SRMC vice president of patient care services, said the nurses are needed in the region.

“The UNCP nursing program will put 200 additional nurses in the pipeline, which will be a great resource for the hospital, WoodHaven, Gibson Cancer Center and the Health Department,” Davis said. “The timing of this program is perfect since we will be opening our heart center in early 2006.”

Educating nurses for leadership and management roles is the mission of the BSN program. Helping solve the nursing shortage is another key goal.

An American Hospital Association study found a nationwide shortage of 126,000 nurses in 2001 and projects a shortfall of 808,000 by 2020. Nursing shortages in rural communities are highest.

Final review of the program by the Board of Nursing occurs when the first class graduates in 2007.

UNCP’s RN-to-BSN program operates sites at Sandhills Community College in Southern Pines, N.C., and Southeastern Community College in Whiteville, N.C. The program offers evening and online classes for RNs seeking to enhance their professional training and careers.

For more information about nursing programs at UNCP, please call (910) 521-6522.

UNCP hosts largest Winter Commencement

The December 11, 2004 Winter Commencement at the University witnessed 402 receive diplomas.

It was UNCP’s fifth Winter Commencement and its largest.

The ceremony was held for the first time in the larger English E. Jones Athletic Center. Traveling the farthest for Commencement were three Chinese students from the prestigious Chinese University of Mining and Technology (CUMT). They received Master of Public Administration degrees.

Keynote speaker Dr. Patricia Valenti, a 20-year veteran of the English Department, served as grand marshal for Commencement by virtue of winning the UNC Board of Governors 2004 Award for Teaching Excellence. She is the author of several books on the family of early American writer Nathaniel Hawthorne.

Chancellor Meadors presided, as he has at all five Winter Commencements at UNCP.
“The University family was strengthened by the Givens family,” said Dr. Charles R. Jenkins in his eulogy for the late Paul R. Givens, Chancellor Emeritus.

A memorial service for Dr. Givens, who led UNCP from 1979 to 1989, was held November 16, 2004 in the building that bears his name, the Paul R. Givens Performing Arts Center. Dr. Givens would have turned 81 on November 16.

Under Dr. Givens’ guidance, the James B. Chavis University Center and the Adolph L. Dial Humanities Building were constructed, and the Herbert G. Oxendine Science Building received a major addition.

Under his leadership, new programs flourished, including American Indian studies, broadcasting, Chancellor’s Scholars and the Economic Development Office. Dr. Givens also launched one of the largest and most successful fund-raising programs in University history to celebrate the University’s centennial.

Chancellor Meadors hailed Dr. Givens as a remarkable leader with an equally remarkable record.

“I had the opportunity to meet Chancellor Emeritus Givens, and I learned to appreciate the leadership skills he brought to this University,” Chancellor Meadors said. “The Givens’ era witnessed a maturing University that was taking its rightful place as a regional university. Dr. Paul R. Givens was truly a great leader for The University of North Carolina at Pembroke.”

Former UNCP Trustee Wayne Evans recalled a 25-year friendship.

“He was such a professional and was always representing the University,” Evans said. “He loved his children and especially talked about his grandchildren. He loved poetry, singing and a good joke.”

Dr. Gregg Givens, the oldest of Paul and Lee Givens’ children, remembered his father and good times at UNCP.

“Pembroke was a special place for my dad and our entire family. Pembroke is home. Pembroke is where our family celebrated 10 Thanksgivings,” Dr. Givens said. “My father recognized the remarkable talent here at the University and in its surrounding communities.”

Dr. Givens quoted from his father’s autobiographical notes: “We felt we had accomplished some things, but it was time to move on.”

Dr. Paul R. Givens retired from UNCP and lived out his remaining years in Florida. He passed away October 24, 2004. He is survived by his wife, Lee; three sons, Gregg, Stann and Rod; one daughter, Deborah; a daughter-in-law, Bonnie; a son-in-law, Robert; nine grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; a brother, Roy; and a sister, Sara Gillis.

Men’s soccer team accomplishes record-breaking season

The men’s soccer season ended with a heart-breaking defeat in the semi-finals of the NCAA championships in Wichita, Texas, with a 4-1 loss to Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. The 2004 season ended with a 16-3 record and many other records.

"I’m very proud of our guys," said Coach Mike Schaeffer. "We never gave up and played hard until the end. The final score was not indicative of how close the game was."

Schaeffer’s team out-shot SIU-Edwardsville 16-14 and had several opportunities to tie the game.

To lament this loss would be to overlook the most outstanding season ever accomplished by a Division II Braves team. The season was covered with superlatives unparalleled in University athletic history:

- The team was ranked as high as number four in the nation, the highest ever by the Braves team;
- The team won its first-ever NCAA tournament game and made its first Final Four appearance;
- The team captured the University’s first outright (and undefeated) Peach Belt Conference (PBC) regular season championship;
- The team won its first conference tournament championship; and
- The team placed five players on the all-region team, five on the all-conference team and one all-American.

Sascha Görres was named to the all-American team. Görres set a school record with 28 assists in his career, and he scored the dramatic game-winning goal in the 81st minute of the quarterfinal match against Central Arkansas University that sent the Braves to their first-ever Final Four appearance.

In another first, UNCP hosted the first two rounds and the quarterfinals of NCAA tournament play. Home cooking paid off for the Braves. To reach the quarters, the Braves defeated Peach Belt rival Clayton College and University 2-0 on two goals from Mircea Cosac.

In his 26th year, Schaeffer was named the Peach Belt’s Coach of the Year. The award marked his second Coach of the Year honor.

The Braves’ domination of the Peach Belt was complete after a 2-1 tournament victory over nemesis USC Upstate. Last year, Upstate knocked UNCP out of both regular season and tournament titles.

Myrland was named the tournament’s most valuable player after turning in the game-winning goal in the championship game and notching two assists in the semifinal win.

Named to the 2004 all-tournament team were Ozgur Baytar, Sascha Görres, Trond Myrland and Joe Warenda.

The Braves represented on the all-conference team included a record five players: Graeme Little, Sascha Görres, Trond Myrland, Thomas Lindal and Sinan Tümkaya. The Braves swept through the regular season with a perfect 6-0 conference mark. Athletic Director Dan Kenney summed up the season.

“UNCP is proud of the accomplishments of the 2004 men’s soccer team,” he said. “After a spectacular 17-1-2 season and their first NCAA appearance in 2003, it is great that they captured the school’s first outright Peach Belt Conference regular season and tournament championships and then went on to win the first NCAA tournament games in school history. A great, great season!”

Coach Schaeffer said team play and contributions from the bench were critical to the team’s run through the Peach Belt.

“The team’s success this year has been a great collective achievement for the members of the squad,” Schaeffer said. “Last year’s team had several individuals who really stood out as impact players. This team had much more depth.”

The two-time PBC Coach of the Year put the season in perspective.

“I have coached here so long without winning a championship,” he said. “Last year, we came as close to winning the championship as was possible without doing so, and this year we simply took the next step. Our players have worked extremely hard for this in games and our practices.”
Gene Locklear, one of the region’s most successful artists and athletes, began work Oct. 17, 2004 on an art academy for young people at the University.

A San Diego, Calif., resident, Locklear and UNCP’s Foundation staged an exhibition and art sale at the Givens Performing Arts Center to raise money for the project, which would train some of the state’s youngest art talent.

“I cherish the experiences I had growing up in Pembroke and treasure the land, people and rich heritage of the area,” Locklear said. “It is appropriate to come back here to the University because this is where I had my first art show at age 6 or 7.”

The show and sale, which featured 22 of Locklear’s original works, were the result of collaboration between Locklear and Chancellor Meadors. Locklear said he hoped it would become an annual event.

On display were Southern and Western landscapes and American Indian and sports artwork. Locklear’s work has been displayed at the White House, the Pentagon and sporting events and in many public and commercial buildings.

Before taking up art full time, Locklear enjoyed a 10-year career in Major League Baseball, playing with the Cincinnati Reds, New York Yankees and finally the San Diego Padres. He was known as an outstanding hitter, batting .321 in 1975 for the Padres.

Members of the art exhibition sale advisory committee included Walter Bull and Betty Mangum of Pinehurst, Dr. Martin Brooks and Arlie Jacobs of Pembroke, Judy Lowery and Jesse Oxendine of Charlotte, Breeden Blackwell of Fayetteville and Vance Houston of Rock Hill, S.C.

For more information, please contact Teresa Oxendine, director of Donor Relations, at (910) 521-6213 or teresa.oxendine@uncp.edu.
During the Scholarship Recognition Dinner on November 9, 2004, some of the University’s greatest philanthropists met for the first time with the beneficiaries of their generosity.

Candice Gooch, a student from Creedmoor, N.C., and recipient of the John Green Memorial Scholarship, said her scholarship made the difference in her quest to earn her doctorate in English. "Because of this scholarship, I’ve been able to concentrate on my studies," she said. "I greatly appreciate it; I’ve earned it, too. I have a 3.8 GPA."

Martha Humphrey Beach, without a doubt the dean of philanthropy at UNCP, was a keynote speaker at the banquet. A 1962 graduate, Beach funded an endowed faculty chair in the Art Department and the Martin H. Beach Endowed Scholarship.

As a student at UNCP, Beach’s family lived on her husband’s $53-a-month disability check. She learned the value of a scholarship. Later, when her new home burned, she learned the value of generosity from neighbors who came to her aid. As a social worker, she learned the value of hope. "The children I worked with at the welfare department did not have the hope or the dream to go anywhere or do anything," she said. "They were poor, but they taught me the importance of dreams and ambitions."

Ricotta joins Office of Corporate and Foundation Relations

Lorna M. Ricotta ’01 assumed the duties of director of the Office of Corporate and Foundation Relations on November 1.

Since 2002, Ricotta served as director of the Office of Alumni Relations, also in the Office for Advancement. She will continue in a dual role until a new director is hired.

In her new position, Ricotta will be responsible for conducting needs assessments with UNCP faculty and administration and seeking funding from public and private sources. She reports to Sandra K. Waterkotte, vice chancellor for Advancement.

A music major at UNCP, Ricotta is completing graduate studies on her Master of Business Administration degree at Fayetteville State University. She was recently accepted into the Leadership North Carolina program, which seeks to engage informed and committed leaders by advancing their leadership qualities and broadening their understanding of and involvement in issues and opportunities facing the state.

Chancellor’s Club Banquet

The Chancellor’s Club Banquet is an annual tradition at the University. In 2004, the event was held on October 30 during a beautiful fall evening at the James B. Chavis University Center.

Those in attendance enjoyed an evening of great food and entertainment, in addition to the recognition of new members and members who obtained lifetime status in the past year.

After dinner, Chancellor’s Club members were treated to a private performance of "The Importance of Being Earnest," a student production directed by Holden Hansen, assistant professor in the English, Theater and Languages Department. The students put on their best character personas and delivered a top-notch performance.

Chancellor’s Club members are the University’s most faithful alumni and friends who support UNCP through annual gifts of $1,000 or more. The Chancellor’s Club Advisory Board recently identified a way to appropriately acknowledge and thank the individuals, businesses and corporations that comprise its membership. They commissioned the construction of a state-of-the-art donor recognition wall that will be placed in one of the campus’ most prominent public locations — the lobby of the Givens Performing Arts Center. They also held a fund-raising campaign to secure the money for the wall’s construction. The advisory board is happy to announce that thanks to the success of this campaign, completion of this project is scheduled for the spring of 2005.

Reserve your place on this donor wall today! Call the Office of Donor Relations at (910) 521-6213 or at 1-800-949-8627 extension 6213 for more information on how you can become the next new member of the Chancellor’s Club.

Advancement
Greetings, Alumni

As 2004 ends and 2005 begins, we should all be thankful for what we have and look forward to our future. UNCP’s future is bright as it continues to grow and expand in terms of reputation, students and facilities.

We can be thankful for our University’s progress, and we look forward to a bright future that includes a new nursing program, a larger Music Department and a football team. The University’s graduates and faculty are receiving awards both locally and nationally. In September 2004, the school set an enrollment record with more than 5,000 students for the fall.

Although our future holds many great events and accomplishments, the most important thing I see in the future for UNC Pembroke is its alumni. We — UNCP’s alumni — have a great deal to be thankful for; however, we have a great deal to do, too. We are the past, the present and the future of UNC Pembroke. In the past, we received a great education at UNCP. In the present, we use this education to achieve great things in our private and professional lives. We need to start today in becoming a vital part of UNCP’s future.

Plan today to come to Homecoming in February and attend the Alumni Awards Banquet. Become an active member in your local alumni chapter or find out how to start a chapter in your area. If you are not an active member, I challenge you to contact the Alumni Office — today and right now — and ask what you can do to be part of UNC Pembroke’s future.

A big part of UNCP’s future is you!

Chancellor’s Christmas tree inspires traditions

One of the most festive Christmas traditions that Barbara Meadors instituted during her first Christmas in Pembroke is that of the University Christmas tree.

Each year, Student Ambassadors decorate the towering live tree. Mrs. Meadors pours punch, serves cookies and leads the group in seasonal song. But this is just the beginning of the story.

Many of the ornaments on the tree are gifts from alumni, who gather with their friends at the annual Alumni Holiday Drop-in to celebrate the season, sing holiday songs, reminisce about college days and spread good cheer. Since 1999, more than 100 alumni ornaments have been catalogued from the event. This year, the drop-in was held December 10 and attended by more than 100 alumni from several graduating classes.

Sampson, Livermore entwined in history

The namesakes of the Sampson-Livermore Library evoke the long and distinguished history of the University and its library.

Oscar R. Sampson’s name has been associated with the University since its first day. Born in 1866, he attended the first session of the Croatan Normal School in 1887 and was one of its first graduates two years later. Appointed to the Board of Trustees in 1896, he served the University faithfully for the next 32 years until his death in 1928.

Sampson Hall, the University’s administration building, was dedicated to his memory in 1949. Although demolished in 1995, his name was not forgotten.

Mary Hoyland Livermore was born in 1883 at Pates, near the original site of the campus. Like Sampson, Livermore was there in the beginning too. She served on the faculty from 1941-51 and served as the first professor of the Religious Education Department.

The library wing of Sampson Hall was dedicated to Livermore in 1963 during the University’s Diamond Jubilee Anniversary celebrations. When a new library building was constructed in 1967, it was dedicated in her memory. She passed away in 1965.

In 1997, the two names were joined again. A large new addition to the library was dedicated as the Sampson-Livermore Library.
