OFFICE FOR COMMUNITY AND CIVIC ENGAGEMENT

What is CCE?

The Office for Community and Civic Engagement coordinates and supports service and academic service-learning activities throughout the UNCP service area. CCE programs include student-led volunteer programs and academic service-learning programs.

CCE Mission

CCE supports the UNCP mission to develop responsible citizenship through education opportunities that provide service to our neighboring communities. CCE provides opportunities for students to recognize their civic potential and take initiative to develop it. Students enrich and enhance their education experience through active and engaged service.

Academic service-learning Program Mission

Academic service-learning at UNCP supports the university mission to be a more engaged and active campus. Faculty and students take part in academic service-learning to enhance learning and achievement in a wide variety of majors and minors, supported through a partnership between UNCP's Office of Academic Affairs and Division of Student Affairs.

WHAT IS ACADEMIC SERVICE-LEARNING?

Academic service-learning is an educational experience based upon a collaborative partnership between college and community. Learning through service enables students to apply academic knowledge and critical thinking skills to meet genuine community needs. Through reflection and assessment, students gain deeper understanding of course content and the importance of civic engagement.

Academic service-learning is a form of experiential education that:

- is developed, implemented and evaluated in collaboration with the community;
- responds to community-identified needs and concerns;
- attempts to balance the service that is provided and the learning that takes place;
- enhances the curriculum by extending learning beyond the classroom and allowing students to apply what they've learned to real-world situations; and
- provides opportunities for critical reflection.

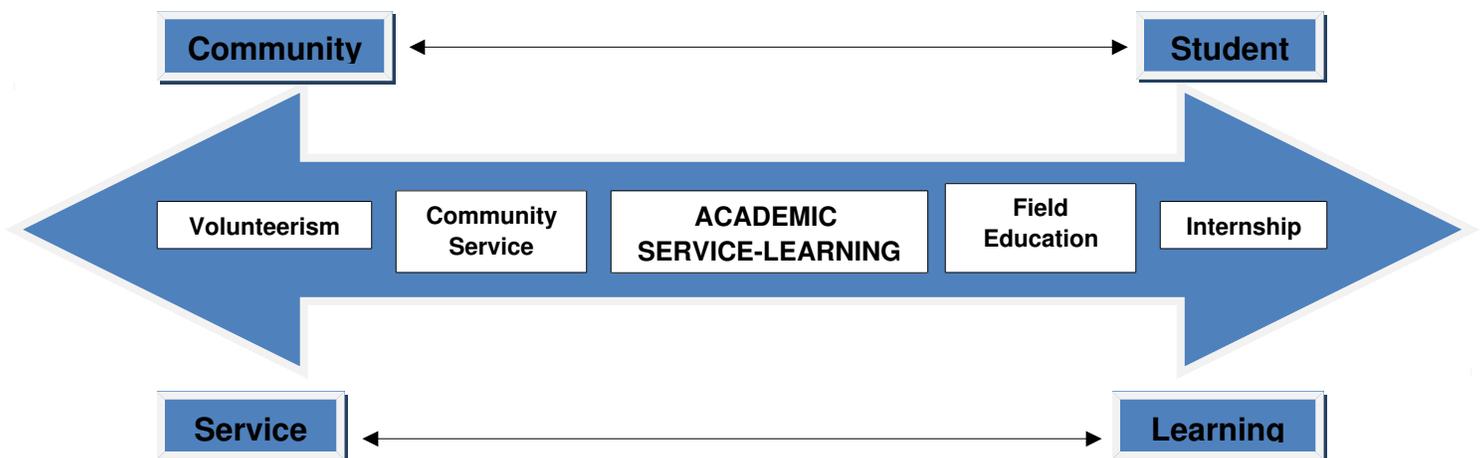

Three types of service:

- Co-Curricular – Outside the classroom
- Resources – Things to help you be successful
- Academic-Service Learning – Inside the classroom

Academic service-learning attributes equal weight to both service and learning goals.

Think of community outreach activities on a continuum, as illustrated below. At one end, the focus is on the community as the beneficiary of service. On the other end of the continuum, the focus is on the student as the beneficiary of learning.

Academic service-learning places equal emphasis on community and student and on service and learning.

IMPLEMENTING A SERVICE-LEARNING COURSE

Beginning the academic service-learning course:

At the beginning of the course, provide your students with an orientation to academic service-learning, to the specific academic service-learning project, and to how academic service-learning will relate to the course and to specific academic learning goals of the course.

- The Associate Director of Academic service-learning is available to provide an overview of academic service-learning for your students. Contact the Office for Community and Civic Engagement in advance to arrange a time to visit your class.
- Communicate clearly to students how the academic service-learning project will help them achieve specific academic learning goals of the course through the course syllabus.
- Make clear that the academic service-learning project adheres to the University's non-discrimination policy, and articulate how students with documented disabilities can and will be supported throughout the project.

Along with your community partner and the academic service-learning students, complete a academic service-learning project agreement and consent forms.

- See Appendixes A, B and C. In consultation with community partner and student please complete and sign agreement forms.
- The only required Appendix is Appendix B. Appendixes A and D are not required and serve as a resource.

The community partner should provide an orientation to the community partner organization for the academic service-learning students.

- The community partner is the expert on the organization and the work of the organization. It will be important for students to have a basic understanding of:
 - The mission and work of the community partner organization
 - The people with whom it works
 - Any behavior, dress, or confidentiality requirements that the organization has for students
 - The role, task, and project in which they will serve.
- Some community partners are within walking distance to campus. However, when walking is not an option, students are encouraged to carpool. If necessary, CCE can assist with securing transportation through Motor Pool. Regardless of means of transportation, all students should sign a travel agreement when traveling for the course. This form can be found under the University Travel Policy.

Ending the Academic service-learning Course:

Provide the community partner with a academic service-learning project evaluation form to complete.

- See Appendix D (not required). Office for CCE will distributes this form to provide results from community partner.
- You may want to provide the community partner with an opportunity to provide feedback about specific students; some faculty partners ask community partners for feedback on what they think the student's grade should be. The community partner's role in assessment should be included in the course syllabus.
- In addition to providing feedback about your specific academic service-learning project, these forms provide valuable information about the academic service-learning program in general, as well as with ideas for future academic service-learning projects.

Provide the Associate Director of Academic service-learning with information on your course, including:

- Dates of Service
- Display of any Public Presentation
- Narrative of Service
- Electronic copies of pictures of the academic service-learning project

Academic service-learning provides a variety of benefits for students including:

- Allows for students to clarify values while pursuing academic studies.
- Allows students to have the opportunity to acquire skills for future work environments such as leadership, problem solving, communication, and critical thinking skills.
- Allows for students to broaden their perspectives of diverse and/or controversial issues.
- Allows for students to gain a sense of inner satisfaction that comes from doing something meaningful for others.
- Allows for students to identify and research a need within their community and evaluate ways to fulfill that need.
- Allows for students to develop relationships with their university and community members.
- Allows for students to develop civic responsibility by being involved within their community.
- Allows students to reflect on how to maximize personal and academic development to help achieve their goals.
- Allows for students to develop a meaningful understanding of course material by partaking in a project and/or experience that is relevant to their own lives and real world problems.

DEVELOPING A ACADEMIC SERVICE-LEARNING SYLLABUS

As you create your academic service-learning syllabus, consider the following elements.

Use course goals and objectives to connect the academic service-learning assignment to academic learning goals.

The course instructor should introduce the academic service-learning component and clearly articulate the relevance of academic service-learning to the course. In all courses designated as SVL, the syllabus must contain the following statement:

Academic service-learning is an educational experience based upon a collaborative partnership between college and community. Learning through service enables students to apply academic knowledge and critical thinking skills to meet genuine community needs. Through reflection and assessment, students gain deeper understanding of course content and the importance of civic engagement. You may contact the Associate Director of Academic service-learning at (910)775-4598 or sandy.jacobs@uncp.edu.

Clearly identify the specific academic service-learning requirements of the course.

The syllabus should introduce the students to the academic service-learning project(s) assigned to them, as well as lay out the specifics of the academic service-learning component.

- Is the service optional or mandatory? If it is optional, does it replace a paper or some other requirement?
- Assignments
- Criteria for Evaluation
- What is the timeline for the semester?
 - When should the academic service-learning assignment be completed?
 - What are the required training and reflection activities?

Provide information about the community partner organization and office for Community and Civic Engagement.

The syllabus should also introduce students to the community partner organization(s) with which they will be collaborating.

- A description of the community partner organization(s)
- Contact information and relevant information about orientation and training
- Students' responsibilities to the community agency
- If any, specific requirements of the community partner organization (regarding dress, confidentiality, or other issues)
- The syllabus should also include contact information for the Office for Community and Civic Engagement

Include a section on the reflective components of the course.

Academic service-learning research concludes that reflection about the experience is the aspect that most influences student learning. Reflection is a valuable way to achieve learning objectives and professional development. There are many forms that reflection can take, ranging from the informal to the formal. However, the key for any reflection assignment is that it is challenging, grounded in concrete experience, requires critical thinking, and inspires interest in the learning.

- Reflection is the key by which academic service-learning experiences are transformed into learning. Effective reflection
 - Integrates the academic service-learning experience with academic learning goals;
 - Occurs regularly throughout the course;
 - Includes components that can be evaluated according to well-defined criteria;
 - Provides opportunities for both public and private reflection; and
 - Fosters a deeper sense of civic engagement.
- It is imperative that you set aside enough time for reflection, to allow for student processing of the academic service-learning experience. An explanation of the purpose and requirements for reflection should be conveyed clearly and prominently in the syllabus.

Reflection is a process that allows students to:

- Develop critical thinking skills
- Examine attitudes, beliefs, assumptions, and stereotypes
- Prevent the reinforcement of existing prejudices and learning inaccurate concepts
- Foster an appreciation of diversity
- Formulate theories based on concrete learning experiences
- Connect the community-based experience with course objectives
- Test theories in “real world” settings
- Use classroom knowledge to provide more effective service
- Arrive at a new understanding of community needs and assets
- Explore the broader social, political, economic, and cultural issues impacting health

Effective reflection:

- Is structured, guided, and purposeful
- Is a regularly occurring activity
- Includes components that can be evaluated based on well defined criteria
- Links service objectives to course objectives
- Includes both private and public reflection
- Fosters civic responsibility
- Fosters appreciation of diversity

Reflection activities:

A variety of methods and tools can be used to foster reflection among students including dialogue, journaling, photo-journaling, directed writing assignments, and exams, just to name a few. Reflection activities can be conducted before, during and after the community-based experience. Reflection activities can be conducted alone, with classmates and with community partners. Below are examples of reflection activities. The instructor should select reflection activities that best promote student learning for a particular course. We encourage instructors to engage community partners in these reflection activities.

Group dialogue:	Whether in person or electronically, students can engage in active discussions that allow them to share their perspectives and experiences . Through the course of open and honest discussion, students are encouraged to discuss their values, beliefs and stereotypes related to the community service experience and the population they are working with. In addition to campus-based faculty, community and/or student leaders can serve as facilitators.

Journaling:	Several different types of journaling techniques are practiced. To maximize reflection and learning, structured journaling in which students refer to a set of questions to prompt their thinking about their activities, feelings, perceptions, values, and attitudes is recommended. Students can submit their journals on a weekly or monthly basis. Instructors can respond to statements or elicit more thinking about a statement by writing notes or questions in the margins. One interesting approach to journaling is to ask students to pick out journal passages that reflect their transformation during the course, and to write an essay about that transformation.
Photo-journaling or video production:	This technique allows students to take pictures or use video to document events and interactions within the community that help convey the community service experience and the learning that has occurred. Photo-journals can be a reflective process and product, or can form the basis of a presentation or essay that elaborates further on the service and learning. A note of caution: While this technique is useful for students who prefer to use art as a form of expression, it is important to receive permission from members within the community to take photos. For example, photos taken within a clinic setting will infringe on a patient’s confidentiality. If possible, photos or videos may be used in future course assignments with student permission. For example, if a student produces a video on a community health center, then this video could be used for future class assignments and discussions.
Directed writing assignments:	Students are asked to reflect on their service within the structure of course content. Instructors may structure questions identifying a section from class readings or the textbook (i.e., quotes, statistics, and concepts). For example, students might be asked to connect their service experience with a competency requirement within their profession, such as improved communication skills, or skills in interdisciplinary collaboration. Students may describe how well they have achieved this competency as a result of their community-based experience, and what they may need to do to improve this skill. Students may need to provide evidence that they have achieved this particular competency. Another approach for a directed writing assignment includes asking the students to create and respond to their own directed questions.
Exams:	Faculty may design exams that include at least one essay question that draws from the material they are being tested on and asks students to connect this to their community-based experiences.

WORKING WITH COMMUNITY PARTNERS

Collaborative partnerships are at the heart of successful academic service-learning experiences. Here are some guidelines to consider as you work to develop a collaborative partnership with your community partner.

All partners are teachers and learners.

A basic assumption of academic service-learning is that all partners – faculty, students, and community partners – are considered teachers and learners. Each partner brings experience, knowledge and expertise to the project. For example, community partners have knowledge and expertise in their fields and in the organizations for which they work and are considered co-educators in the academic service-learning process.

Clear, honest, on-going communication is essential.

Each academic service-learning course is different, and the relationship between each faculty partner and community partner is different. For these reasons, clear, honest, and on-going communication is key to the success of a academic service-learning partnership.

All must comply with the UNCP’s Non-Discrimination Policy.

All community partners must abide by UNCP’s Non-Discrimination Policy. The policy is found in the UNCP Student Handbook:

“UNCP affirms its desire to maintain a work environment for all employees and an academic environment for all faculty and students that is free from all forms of harassment and discrimination. UNCP wishes to maintain an environment which supports and rewards individuals on the basis of such relevant factors as academic ability and work performance. Conduct or action that is based on a person’s race, color, creed, national origin, religion, sex, age, disability, or veteran status creating a hostile environment that prevents effective learning or work performance is in opposition to a campus environment free of harassment.”

Be aware of differing schedules.

A frequent challenge of academic service-learning projects is finding a common time when all the partners can meet. Most community partner organizations do not follow the schedule of an academic year. In developing and carrying out the academic service-learning project, students and faculty should be aware of this and work to make the community partner aware of the unique rhythm of the academic term. For example, it may be helpful to share a copy of the academic calendar with your community partner, highlighting specific dates that might be of importance to your partner and students.

CCE ACADEMIC SERVICE-LEARNING PROGRAMS AND RESOURCES

In addition to the resources found in this handbook, CCE offers other academic service-learning resources, including:

Academic service-learning Workshops

- CCE regularly offers academic service-learning workshops in a variety of formats. Some of the workshops feature national leaders in academic service-learning, while others feature our own faculty, community partners, staff and students who are experienced in academic service-learning. All of our academic service-learning workshops are designed to provide opportunities to share ideas and information, improve communication, and learn more about best practices in academic service-learning. Check the CCE academic service-learning webpage or contact the Associate Director for Academic service-learning for dates of upcoming workshops, and contact the ADSL to create targeted programs for groups of faculty on topics as desired.

Academic service-learning Resource Library

- The Academic service-learning Resource Library contains books, journals, and manuals all focused on academic service-learning. These resources are available for you to borrow. See the CCE academic service-learning webpage for a full list of available resources. Contact the Associate Director of Academic service-learning to borrow resources. Also, feel free to suggest resources that might add value to the UNCP Academic service-learning Program.

Academic service-learning Project Stipends

- CCE offers support project stipends to help faculty and community partners cover the extra expenses that sometimes arise during academic service-learning projects. Contact the Associate Director for Service-Learning for more information about applying for project stipends.

Academic service-learning Teacher Assistant

- CCE offers opportunity for Academic service-learning Teaching Assistants to work with faculty members teaching academic service-learning courses, helping to coordinate the academic service-learning components of designated courses.

Academic service-learning Scholarship and Conferences

- CCE encourages faculty, community partners, and students to consider submitting proposals for conference presentations to share with others about the high-quality academic service-learning work that we do together. What's more, CCE supports the development of scholarship in academic service-learning and civic engagement through special workshops, cohorts, and work groups. If you have an idea for a academic service-learning conference presentation, would like to attend a academic service-learning conference, or would like to collaborate with others in developing academic service-learning and civic engagement scholarship, please contact the Associate Director of Academic service-learning.

Course Title and Number: _____

Purpose.

The purpose of this Agreement is to place Student with the Agency as part of a Academic service-learning Program offered by the University for Academic Credit or required by course of study. In consideration of the mutual provisions herein, the parties hereby agree to the following:

2. Agency Obligations and Responsibilities.

- 2.1 The Agency shall provide the Student with an Agency contact who will monitor and supervise the student throughout the experiential learning project. In addition, the Agency shall provide an orientation and training to the agency, including policies and procedures, mission, populations served, and specific focus areas.
- 2.2 The Agency shall provide necessary space, equipment and materials for projects.
- 2.2 Advertising. The Agency shall not use, in its external advertising, marketing programs or promotional efforts, any data, pictures or other representation of the University except on the specific written authorization in advance by the University. The University shall not unreasonably withhold consent.
- 2.3 Agency Insurance. The Agency shall have a clear risk management and personnel policies and procedures in place for volunteers. It is recommended that the Agency carry volunteer accident and liability coverage. All of this should be included in orientation.
- 2.4 In the event that the Student is injured or becomes ill during the course of the academic service-learning program, the Agency shall provide medical assistance and first aid to the Student as appropriate.
- 2.5 The Agency shall be in compliance with all Federal and State regulations where the Student is involved.
- 2.6 The Agency shall related the student's service assignment to the course learning objectives and keep a good record of hours completed and evaluations.
- 2.7 Agency shall adhere to additional criteria and obligations specific to the academic service-learning project description and should notify the instructor of any changes or concerns.

3. University Obligations and Responsibilities.

- 3.1 A Faculty member shall monitor the Student throughout the experiential learning program.

Faculty member shall:

- A. Provide written learning objectives for students and approve the academic service-learning opportunity.
 - B. Orient students to the purposes of academic service-learning, the connection of serve options with course learning objectives, and the importance of commitment and respect at Agency.
 - C. Provide opportunities for students to reflect on their service to better integrate project with course learning objectives.
 - D. Obtain all necessary signatures and approvals from University Departments (including, but not limited to Academic service-learning Program and Institutional Review Board).
- 3.2 At this time, the University does not carry insurance for volunteers.
 - 3.3 Adhere to additional criteria and obligations specific to the Academic service-learning Project Description.

4. Mutual Obligations and Responsibilities.

- 4.1 The relationship of the parties to each other is solely that of independent contractors. No party shall be considered an employee, agent, partner or fiduciary of the other except for such purposes as may be specifically enumerated herein, nor shall anything contained in this Agreement be construed to create any partnership or joint venture between the parties.
- 4.2 The Agency agrees that it shall be responsible for the ordinary negligent acts or omissions of its agents and employees causing injury to another person.
- 4.3 The parties to this Agreement agree to not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, disability or age.
- 4.4 No party shall disclose or use any information of a private, confidential or proprietary nature or any other trade secret without prior written authorization, except as required by law.
- 4.5 It is understood and agreed that this Agreement may be terminated at any time without cause by the Student, Agency, or the University.

5. General.

- 5.1 No amendment or modification of this Agreement shall be valid unless in writing and executed with the same formality as this Agreement by authorized representatives of the parties hereto. Neither the failure of a party to enforce any provision in this Agreement, nor any breach or default hereunder shall be deemed a waiver of any right herein.
- 5.2 No party shall assign or otherwise transfer its rights or delegate its obligations under this Agreement without all parties' prior written consent. Any attempted assignment, transfer, or delegation without such consent is void. All of the terms and provisions of this Agreement are binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto and their successors and assigns.

- 5.3 The University will not be responsible for any losses resulting from delay or failure in performance resulting from any cause beyond the University's control, including without limitation: war, strikes or labor disputes, civil disturbances, fires, natural disasters, etc...
- 5.4 This Agreement is the complete and final agreement between the parties and supersedes all prior oral or written agreements with respect to the subject matter herein. No oral or written promises or conditions exist outside this Agreement. This Agreement represents the entire understanding of the parties.
- 5.5 All parties will adhere to University operating policies and procedures.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have executed this Agreement as of the day and year first above written.

STUDENT SERVICE CONSENT AND RELEASE AGREEMENT
(To be completed by Student)Appendix C

This Agreement is designed to protect all participants in The University of North Carolina at Pembroke's volunteer and service programs, including but not limited to, students, faculty, staff, The University of North Carolina at Pembroke and the agencies and individuals cooperating with the University. The student must sign this Agreement, with parental or guardian approval if the student is under the age of 18, to indicate agreement with the terms and conditions of the Agreement and permission to participate in the designated program.

Course Name & Number _____ Semester/Academic Year _____

I understand that participation in service and academic service-learning projects at the University of North Carolina at Pembroke is voluntary and that any such program involves some element of risk. I agree that in consideration of UNC Pembroke sponsoring this activity and allowing my participation, I (including my parents, guardians, and legal representatives) will release, indemnify, and hold harmless UNC Pembroke, and its Trustees, officers, employees, faculty, agents, successors, and assigns from liability for any and all claims, demands rights or causes of action, present or future, resulting from or arising out of any activity or travel conducted by or under the auspices of the University of North Carolina at Pembroke Office for Community and Civic Engagement. I understand that the University requires that all students be covered by appropriate accident and medical insurance and that the student be financially responsible for such expenses. My signature below verifies that I am covered by such insurance.

I understand and agree to abide by the following Guidelines, Transportation Statement, Accessibility Statement, Responsibilities and Limitations:

- Ask for help when in doubt: Your site supervisor understands the issues at your site and you are encouraged to approach him/her with problems or questions as they arise. He/She can assist you in determining the best way to respond to difficult or uncomfortable situations.
- Be punctual and responsible: You are participating in the organization as a reliable, trustworthy and contributing member of the team. Both the administrators and the person whom you serve rely on your punctuality and commitment to completing your service hours/project throughout your partnership.
- Call if you anticipate lateness or absence: Call the site supervisor if you are unable to come in or if you anticipate being late. Be mindful of your commitment, people are counting on you.
- Respect the privacy of all clients: If you are privy to confidential information with regard to the persons with whom you are working (i.e. organizational files, diagnostics, personal stories, etc), treat it as privileged information.
- Show respect for the community-based organization you work for: Placement within community programs is an educational opportunity and a privilege. Keep in mind, not only are you serving the community but the community is serving you by investing valuable resources in your learning.
- Be appropriate: You are in a work situation and are expected to treat your supervisor and others with courtesy and kindness. Dress comfortably, neatly and appropriately. Use formal names unless instructed otherwise. Set a positive standard for other students to follow as part of UNCP's service program.
- Be flexible: The level or intensity of activity at a service site is not always predictable. Your flexibility to changing situations can assist the partnership in working smoothly and producing positive outcomes for everyone involved.

Transportation Statement:

If university vehicles are not available or do not meet the needs of the trip students should determine amongst themselves (faculty or staff members should not facilitate) which students will drive the other students to the Service Learning location. This is applicable to short distance trips (less than 40 miles) and long distance trips (over 40 miles). Students who choose to drive to the Academic service-learning project site assume all of risk.

Accessibility Statement:

Federal laws require UNCP to accommodate students with documented learning, physical, chronic health, psychological, visual, and/or hearing disabilities.

Students Responsibilities:

- Be responsible for the agreed service hours. Call ahead if they will be late or unable to attend a scheduled service shift.
- Follow all policies of the Agency, including health and safety precautions and confidentiality.
- Stay within guidelines and scope of assigned responsibilities. Avoid risky or inappropriate behavior. Do not work alone with, transport, loan money or engage in inappropriate relationships with children or clients.
- Follow all guidelines and policies related to confidentiality and reporting.
- Inform the site supervisor of the learning objectives for the academic service-learning course.
- Notify the site supervisor and/or instructor of any concerns or changes.
- Student Insurance. The University requires that Student maintain sufficient health, accident, disability and hospitalization insurance for the duration of his or her time as a Student. Student shall be responsible for any expenses incurred due to injury, illness or damage suffered during the course of the academic service-learning program
- Adhere to additional criteria and obligations specific to the Academic service-learning Project Description.
