Step 1: Register for an orientation date and complete online orientation modules. While orientation is online this summer, all students must still sign-up for an orientation date to gain access to the online modules. You can access the orientation registration link through your BraveWeb account. Freshmen students will gain access to online orientation 3 days prior to your scheduled orientation date.

Step 2: Participate in enrollment meeting with your academic advisor. Prior to your orientation date, you will receive an email from an academic advisor in the University College to sign-up for a 30 min enrollment meeting conference call. Your conference call will occur during one of the two days of your original orientation date. During this meeting, you will be able to review your pre-assigned course schedule and ask questions concerning your enrollment. You will have the ability to make adjustments in consultation with your academic advisor.

Step 3: Attend virtual orientation small group meeting. By the end of June, you will be able to sign-up for your required orientation small group meeting with an Orientation Leader. These meetings will take place in July. This meeting will be virtual and information on how to access the video conference system will be provided when you sign-up for your meeting.

Step 4: Attend Welcome Week. Lastly, you will continue your orientation experience during Welcome Week. Move-in is August 14, 2020. There will be required sessions from August 14-18, 2020 for commuters and on-campus students. A detailed schedule including move-in instructions will be released mid-July.
