

UNIVERSITY of NORTH CAROLINA

PEMBROKE

Assistant Professor of Computer Science

The candidate will be expected to effectively teach a variety of Cybersecurity, IT, and CS courses, to advise and mentor students, and to engage in scholarship and professional service. The Math & CS department is planning to develop a new major in Cyber Security, and the candidate will serve as the point-of-contact/coordinator for this intended program.

The courses taught in the department cover all levels of an undergraduate program in topic areas such as programming languages (Java, C++), object-oriented programming, event-driven programming, computer architecture, software engineering, web technology & security, operating system & security, network & security, system integration, system assurance, digital logic and design, human-computer interactions, game development, artificial intelligence, and database & security. The candidate must be able to communicate effectively through spoken, written, and visual media. Salary and academic rank are commensurately depending on directly related education and experience level.

Minimum Training and Experience Requirements: Candidates must have earned a doctorate in cybersecurity, computer science, information technology, or a related field with at least 18 credit hours at the graduate level in the above-mentioned disciplines.

Special Instructions to Applicants:

The Search Committee will begin its formal review of candidates by January 15, 2021 and will continue its review until the position is filled. Candidates should attach a letter of interest, current vita, copies of transcripts, and reference list.

This position is subject to the successful completion of an employment background check. An employment background check includes a criminal background check, employment verification, reference checks, license verification (if applicable) and credit history check (if applicable).

In compliance with federal law, all persons hired will be required to verify identity and eligibility to work in the United States and to complete the required employment eligibility verification form upon hire.
